

Royal Asiatic Society Journal - Call for Submissions from Young Scholars

The Royal Asiatic Society China (RAS) has been publishing its journal in Shanghai since 1858, providing fascinating insights into the lives, interests and activities of the expatriate community since the beginning of modern foreign involvement in China. We are proud to continue this important endeavour for the benefit of our members and the wider community of China watchers.

In addition, the journal will feature a Young Scholar's Essay. Students under the age of 20 may submit a research essay in English (maximum 5000 words) on any subject related to China. The editing team will select the most outstanding essay for inclusion into the RAS Journal.

Teachers who are interested in helping students submit an essay for consideration are invited to contact the RAS Journal Editor for more information.

The deadline for submissions is 1 July 2019. Students intending to submit must send an abstract or article outline to the editor before 1 June 2019. The 2019 RAS Journal will be published in November.

The journal generally comprises scholarly articles describing original research and observations, book reviews and reports of activities. Translations from Chinese into English are also welcome. The scope of the journal is broad: we hope the journal will help to inform readers about life in China and Asia - past, present and future. Although students may write about any subject of interest to China scholars, please note that material that may contravene the guidelines established by the Chinese government for speech and publications will not be accepted.
